M: _____

2. 대화를 듣고, 남자의 마지막 말에 대한 여자의 응답으로 가장 적절한 것을 고르시오.

M: Mina, didn't you say you're from Seoul?

W: Yes. I was born and raised there. Why do you ask?

M: I'm going on a trip to Seoul next week, and I'd like your advice on where to stay.

W: _____

3. 다음을 듣고, 남자가 하는 말의 목적으로 가장 적절한 것을 고르시오.

M: Thank you all for coming today. Before we end this parents' meeting, we have something to tell you. As you know, our school has had a partnership with Beijing Secondary School since last year. Five Chinese teachers from that school will come next semester to teach our students. So, we're looking for families to host the visitors. They'll be joining us in January and staying until the end of the semester. Having them stay in your home would be a great opportunity for your family to learn about a new culture. If you're interested, please contact Mr. Gilmore in the school office.

W: How did they do that?
M: They took turns doing mouth-to-mouth and heart massage until the ambulance arrived.
W: Unbelievable! How did they know what to do?
M: The newspaper says the students took regular first-aid training classes.
W: Then, is it all thanks to practicing first aid regularly?
M: I think so. That's how they could stay calm and save their friend even in that emergency situation.
W: Now I see why practicing first aid regularly is necessary.
M: You can say that again.

5. 대화를 듣고, 두 사람의 관계를 가장 잘 나타낸 것을 고르시오.

W: Yes. I went to your exhibition and saw the amazing pictures you took. I'd like to put them in my book.
M: I'm flattered. What are you writing about?
W: I'm writing about wild flowers in Canada.
M: Oh, you are? Then my photos would be perfect for your book.
W: I'm glad you think so. With your permission, I want to use your pictures. They'll make reading my book more enjoyable.

W: I'll take ten, and do you have salads?
M: We do. You can get a green salad for just three dollars this week.
W: Then I'll add ten green salads, please.
M: So ten chicken sandwiches and ten green salads, right?
W: Yes. And I also have a ten percent discount coupon.
M: Okay. Please tell me the coupon code.

M: Yes, I drew two test tubes instead of letter 'i's.
W: That's nice.
M: What about the triangle-shaped club logo in the top left corner?
W: Great. I like this picture of a man. He's looking through a telescope, sitting on a chair.

M: One of our staff probably took them down. Did your posters have stamps of approval?
W: Yes. I got all of them stamped, and I put them up on the boards for clubs only!
M: Then you put them in the right place. Do you remember when you posted them?

W: I'm thinking of surveying a group of college students.
M: How will you survey them?
W: I'm planning to interview at least 100 students in person.
M: That's a good idea. How about offering some kind of gift to those students?
W: I've already thought about that. I'm going to give them smartphone accessories.

W: Good. Do you want to try on characters' costumes? That'll be fun and exciting.

So when he sees a herd of buffalo, he tries to get out of the car to take pictures of them more closely. However, Carrie is worried about the danger of being outside of the car. So, she wants to tell him to stay in the car when taking pictures. In this situation, what would Carrie most likely say to Bill?

[16~17] 다음을 듣고, 물음에 답하십시오.

W: Welcome to Window to the World. Today, we'd like to share some food traditions from around the world to help make your New Year's Eve more special. On New Year's Eve, people in different countries eat certain foods for good luck for the next year. First, in Spain, people celebrate New Year's by quickly eating a dozen grapes at midnight. Each sweet grape represents a good month and each sour grape a less lucky month. In the U.S. and Europe, people eat green, leafy vegetables such as cabbage and spinach on New Year's Eve because they have a similar color to paper cash. In some countries, including Austria and Portugal, eating pork symbolizes progress. Some say it's because pigs never move backward. Whether you actually believe in these things or not, you may find a new favorite food of your own on our list. And if no luck comes your way, at least you'll go into the new year with a full belly.

다시 한 번 들겠습니다.
